The Police Furniture.

From the Boston Herald, we take the following account of the furniture, etc., which is being made in that city for His Majesty the King.

King Kalakaua, after visiting many of the principal furniture warehouses of the country, was impressed with the fact that the most beautiful upholstery and carved work that came under his inspection were from Boston, and he decided to place his order for furniture with the firm of Davenport & Co. The carrying out of the work was, however, left entirely to the judgment of Col. Judd. The above named firm was given instruction to construct 225 pieces of furniture, as designated by specifications. A visit to the warehouses of Davenport & Co., discovered the royal decorations to be in an advanced stage of completion and nearly ready for shipment. It is proposed to have the articles ready to be sent out about the 1st of June.

DESCRIPTION OF THE APPOINTMENTS.
The grand reception or throne room will be decorated in red and gold. At its northern extremity is a dais about 12 inches high, and here will be located two throne chairs. They are Gothic in style, the back of each is upholstered in red silk, and the wood work heavily laid in gold, of two prettily contrasting shades. The upholstery is in red silk brocade. There will be 12 other chairs in this room, similarly gilded and upholstered as the throne chairs, but of much smaller dimensions. Over the dais, supported by a burnished rod, will be a canopy of red brocade, ornamented with massive fringe of the same shade. In the middle of this room will be placed a large circular sofa, covered with satin brocade. The canopy of this will be surrounded by a beautiful china vase, with flowers. The windows will be draped in heavy red brocade, with bars and rings. The curtains are elaborately carved, very deep, completely gilded and each surmounted by a crown and two spears. Against the walls three massive pier mirrors will be placed—their dimensions being 148 feet, the frames of which are rich in carving and gold.

THE AUDIENCE ROOM.
This apartment will be tastefully, though not as elaborately furnished as the throne room. The sofas and chairs are of highly polished and artistically-carved walnut, upholstered in blue embossed moiré plush of a delicate tint. Heavy fringe of the same shade is used as a trimming. The windows will be hung in the same material as the upholstery, and the curtains from brass rings. In this room will be located a dining table, 12 feet long and 10 feet wide, in which will be placed such curiosities as the King may collect. There will also be two side tables for bric-a-brac.

The library is to be furnished with one large table, 10 feet long and 5 feet wide, and 12 chairs of the Elizabethan style, carved with maroon colored morocco. The wood is of dark cherry, oiled, in the manner known to the trade as dead finish. There are two windows in this room, and the curtains are of Turkish maroon satin.

The music room will contain a centre sofa six chairs and a music rack of the Elizabethan style, in black ebony, carved with maroon colored morocco. The wood is of dark cherry, oiled, in the manner known to the trade as dead finish. There are two windows in this room, and the curtains are of Turkish maroon satin.

FOR THE KING'S ROOM
A most elaborate suit of Gothic furniture is being made, which comprises one very beautiful carved bedstead, fitted with ebony and gold mouldings, the canopy and bed curtains being of blue satin damask and heavily ornamented with costly fringe; also two wardrobes, two dressing tables of mammoth dimensions, 12 chairs, lounges, etc., the coverings being of blue satin damask. All the furniture in this room, with the exception of the bedstead, is of ebony, abounding in a wealth of the most beautiful and elaborate carvings. There are nine windows, the drapery of which is blue satin, hung on ebony poles.

The Queen's apartments are similar to the King's, except that the draperies will be of red satin in the dining room, and of mahogany, beautifully slashed with gold. The two guests' rooms will be furnished, one with a suit of cherry upholstered in blue cretonne, and the other with a suit of oiled walnut, covered with ground cretonne. The number of pieces in these apartments will be a duplicate of what the King's room will contain.
